

“Ted Lasso”

Rebecca and her philandering husband are the owners of AFC Richmond, a Premier League English soccer team. Richmond is the center of her husband's world but when they get divorced she gets ownership of the team. It is get even time for Rebecca. Her devious plan is to break her ex - husband's heart by making sure that Richmond has a losing season. What better way to tank the club than to hire Ted Lasso, an American amateur football coach who knows nothing about soccer. While Ted is a font of endless enthusiasm, he is totally at sea as a soccer coach until one day when Nathan, the shy and diminutive equipment manager, gives him a piece of sage advice. So begins Ted's journey into the world of big league soccer. With his new found knowledge and inspirational leadership the team is soon on a roll and even Rebecca starts pulling for them.

Among the virtues of this comedy with a heart are:

Rebecca's steely personality; Ted's eternally sunny take on life; Nathan; the human Teddy Bear; and Jaime Tartt, the team's star and the man you love to hate.

Ted's locker room pep talks and his evolving relationship with the team.

The scenes of the team at play and the consummate athletic skill on display.

And what would a sports movie be without the “big game”. It is a nail biter. (Apple TV).

PS:

Also check out Season 3 of the “The Kominski Method”, a comedy series no one of “a certain age” should miss. (Netflix)

