

“Glass Onion”

The “Glass Onion” is a worthy successor to “Knives Out”. It features Daniel Craig once again as Detective Benoit Blanc, a modern day Sherlock Holmes. This time Blanc is matching wits with tech billionaire Miles Bron (Edward Norton) who has invited a group of old friends to his Mediterranean island mansion for a weekend mystery game. For the first half hour or so the tale goes back and forth so quickly that you are hard pressed to figure out what is going on. But when Helen (Janelle Morae) visits Blanc in London to find out what happened to her twin sister Andi things start to fall into place. Who will survive the weekend and who will not and what role does the “Mona Lisa” play? Enough said. If you are looking for an entertaining diversion you should check out the “Glass Onion” on Netflix. And if you have never seen “Knives Out” you can catch it on Amazon Prime. (Reviewed on my website under “Mystery”)